

Information Technology: the portable future

Choose a career that moves when you do!

IT can take you where you want to go
– and you can take IT where you go!

Constantly relocating? A career in IT could be the most portable thing in your life! With a career in information technology, you can work anywhere in the world.

Consider this:

Telework (a.k.a. telecommute) is on the rise, and IT skills can help you take advantage of opportunities to work from a remote location (away from the traditional office) using a computer, the Internet & teleconference programs like Skype

- 40% of IBM's global workforce of 386,000 have the option of telecommuting*
- 48% of U.S. employers offer an option of telework at least one day a week; 21% offer fulltime telwork*

Fegley, Shawn et al. 2007 Benefits Survey Report. Society for Human Resource Management, 2007.*

This, too:

The IT career outlook is good across the country. The projected number of new IT jobs by 2014:*

• Colorado	37,940	(+47%)
• Virginia	141,611	(+42%)
• California	119,600	(+29%)
• Texas	64,950	(+28%)
• Washington	26,990	(+27%)
• Washington D.C.	8,087	(+27%)

Occupational Long-Term Projections by State: http://www.projectionscentral.com/lt_search.aspx*